

From the

School for the Future of Innovation in Society

Sleep Dealer

Film screening + panel discussion

part of

The Future in Films series

Monday

November 9, 2015

5:00 pm

Pima Auditorium, MU

RSVP to csपो@asu.edu by noon Fri. 11/6

The mind-bending science fiction film Sleep Dealer provides a window into a dystopian future on the U.S.-Mexico border. The desert is parched and water is ruthlessly hoarded by private interests. Drones streak across the desert skies, hunting for dissidents. The border is sealed. In Mexico, workers toil in digital factories where they remotely control robots working in the United States, building skyscrapers and tending to the elderly. Sleep Dealer was awarded both the Waldo Salt Screenwriting Award and the Alfred P. Sloan prize for the best science or technology film at the Sundance Film Festival in 2008.

Join the School for the Future of Innovation and Society for a screening and conversation—and free nachos and drinks—featuring experts on technology and society, risk innovation, immigration, labor, and the past, present, and future of national borders.

Panelists include

Lisa Magaña

Lisa Magaña is an Associate Professor in ASU's School of Transborder Studies. She is an expert in the areas of immigration and Latino public policy issues, and is the author of the books Straddling the Border: Immigration Policy and the INS (2003) and Mexican Americans and the Politics of Diversity: ¡Querer es poder! (2005), and the co-editor of the anthology Latino Politics and Arizona's Immigration Law SB 1070 (2013).

Andrew Maynard

Andrew Maynard is a Professor in ASU's School for the Future of Innovation in Society, and the Director of the Risk Innovation Lab, a unique center focused on transforming how we think about and act on risk, in pursuit of increasing and maintaining various kinds of "value." He is the co-chair of the World Economic Forum Global Agenda Council on Nanotechnology, the creator of the YouTube channel "Risk Bites," and writes a regular column for the journal Nature Nanotechnology.

Rick Rodriguez

Rick Rodriguez is the Southwest Borderlands Initiative Professor at ASU's Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication, where he is developing programs for in-depth reporting on Latino and borderland issues. He is the former Executive Editor and Senior Vice President of The Sacramento Bee. During his tenure at The Bee, his staff won many of the country's most prestigious awards, including the Pulitzer Prize, Robert F. Kennedy Award, and George Polk Award for investigative reporting. Rick was the first Latino to serve as President of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

In association with College of Liberal Arts & Sciences